Delectable Morsel from Holly Hill.

Let France sing the praise of the lily,
And England the charms of the rose;
Let each nation boast
The flower loved most.
We envy no emblem that blows
More dear than the proudest of flowers
That grow on Nature's green sod,
Is the bright yellow plume
Of our ever-loved bloom—
America's "golden rod."

—By Request.

Last week, while our nation reverently bowed its head in sorrowing grief for the loss of a great and good life, so ruthlessly snatched away in its fullness of love and honor, 'tis not strange that the heart was too full for utterance, and the pen refused to write.

Pleased to note that Mr. Eno's house is now assuming quite a changed appearance, decidedly for the better, having been ceiling throughout, and verandas having been added on the south and west exposures. We are always glad to welcome such enterprising and sociable neighbors. Here's to his health! May he and family live long and prosper well. Drink hearty.

Seed-time has again come, and we learn that many of our industrious neighbors are digging and grubbing, quite diligently, preparatory to planting early rose potatoes for winter use.

Half a dozen or more of the young people of the hamlet, will soon again turn their faces toward the Daytona High School, to obtain that which is more priceless than gold.

While returning homeward last Saturday evening, Mr. Paetetti, riding peacefully along, was startled and not a little alarmed, to behold a large rattler coiling to spring, at his wheel. First thoughts are always best—and somehow—he concluded he would rather be a living coward than a dead hero.

'Tis pleasant for old friends to meet after a lapse of long years, and when Mrs. Rankin, of St. Augustine, came quite unexpectedly on the excursion last week to Mrs. McCoy's, there was joy on both sides. Mrs. Rankin, also a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wetherell, is contemplating Holly Hill as the home of herself and family in the near future.

Mr. Windom's new launch is progressing rapidly. If Holly Hill must needs be famous, why should not it (the fame) take the form of launches? Our little village is already the proud possessor of quite a fleet.

The fall storm, so long predicted, has come and gone—good luck to it—with its usual accompaniment of heavy winds, drizzling rains and high tides.

Just below his residence, Mr. Bunnell is erecting a grocery store, while directly opposite are the foundations for his new saw mill. Glad to note this good work, Mr. Bunnell. It lends an air of industry to our bustling community.

How to Button a Coat.

The art of properly buttoning a coat—any coat—is, do it the other way. That is to say that nine out of every ten of us button our coats the wrong way. We commence with the topmost button when we should commence with the bottommost.

The frailest portion of a coat, in respect to shape retaining qualities—no matter how well made—is the region of collar and lapels. The swagger merchant tailor always cautions his customer to "wear it buttoned a few days so that the collar may set properly."

Then, this admitted, it follows that tugs and strains affecting this part of the garment tend to destroy its symmetry. Drawing the coat together by the top button and buttonhole for the purpose of fastening exerts a pull all around the shoulders and neck region, which, by repetition, in time will give the smartest coat a hang dog appearance.—Chat.

Made Good Matches.

She—I can't make out how it is that Mrs. Wise has fish for nearly every meal. It can't be for economy's sake, for she must be fairly well off.

He—She has a large family of unmarried daughters, you know.

She—Now, don't be nasty and say something about girls and their brains. That's so old.

He—Oh, no, I hadn't the slightest intention of doing so!

She—Well, can't you tell me?

He—I don't know, I'm sure, unless it's because fish are rich in phosphorus.

She—I don't see what that has to do with it.

He—Perhaps not, but still it's good for making matches.

Scotch Thrift.

The city council of Auckland placed a price on the head of every rat in the city, and a grocer's boy became a perfect Nimrod and slew about 30. At the risk of contracting the plague he carried his dead load, obtained the scalp money and came back jubilant to his master and told him how much he had made. The master cast upon him an eye of Aberdeen gray, and then remarked quietly, "Weel, weel, ye'll just pay the rats to your casbier, for ye ken the rats is mine, not yours."—Sydney Bulletin.

The Dictionary.

If you want to be really interested, read the dictionary. It will tell you how very badly other people spell our language and, incidentally, what a tiny couple of words we each dip up out of its ocean.—Minneapolis Times.

White's Cream Vermifuge is perfectly harmless, and will remove every worm. It is also a tonic, and by its strengthening properties will restore to pale cheeks the rosy hue of health. Price 25 cts. Dr. J. M. Jones.

Crying and Groaning.
According to a French physician, crying and groaning in pain are nature's own methods of subduing the keenness of physical suffering. He thinks that men should freely relieve their sufferings in this way and that crying in children should not be repressed, as in doing so serious consequences may be engendered.

Called Lorillard's Bluff.

Heavy better as he was, Pierre Lorillard once met his match when he ran up against gray bearded James E. Kelly, who introduced bookmaking into this country. It was nearly a generation ago and at Jerome park. Kelly was laying 2½ to 1 against one of Lorillard's horses in a big stake event. The news went to Mr. Lorillard, seated on his coach on the clubhouse lawn.

"I'll just take a little of the conceit out of that sawed off Irishman," said Lorillard to Wright Sanford, Newbold Morris, John Hunter and a few other congenial spirits. They started for the ring together.

"I'll lay $10,000 on my horse at that price, Kelly," said Mr. Lorillard in his princely fashion, expecting to see Kelly wilt and refuse to take the wager.

"Certainly, Mr. Lorillard," then turning to his sheet writer, Kelly said: "$25,000 against $10,000, Pierre Lorillard." Quickly he turned to the tobacco magnate with a polite "Much obliged to you, Mr. Lorillard; very much obliged. Would you or your friends care to bet another $10,000 at the same odds? Should be delighted to accommodate you."

"What a nerve!" was all Mr. Lorillard could say as he turned on his heel and walked away.

Jimmy Kelly won the bet, for Lorillard's horse was beaten.—New York Times.

"Pa," said little Willie, "why do they speak of the 'milk in the cocoanut'?"

"It's more like water."

"Exactly," replied Mr. Clitman. "And that's why they call it milk, very probably."—Philadelphia Record.

CUPID'S ODD PRANKS.

WHY SOME WOMEN FELL IN LOVE WITH THEIR HUSBANDS.

Peculiar Reasons That at Times Influence the Fair Sex in Matters of the Heart—The Woman Who Won and Wedded a Woman Hater.

If there is one question more than another to which it is difficult to get or give a satisfactory answer it is surely this: "Why did you fall in love with your husband?" In 19 cases out of 20 woman would probably confess candidly that she did not know or else she would declare conclusively that she did because she did, and that ought to end the matter.

In the rare cases where the lady condescends to declare her reason the answers are both interesting and instructive.

"Whatever made you marry the prisoner?" a London magistrate asked a woman whose face bore "striking" evidence of her husband's affection. "Because he punched all the other fellows' heads," she answered, "and nobody else dared make love to me."

Another good lady confessed that she fell in love with her husband because he was the "only man who ever dared to snub her." While other men were stumbling over each other to pay her court and attention, he always treated her with absolute indifference and even rudeness.

The consequence was that she determined to bring him to her feet and his knees. She succeeded, but lost her heart in the attempt.

"I fell in love with my husband," one lady recently declared, "because he was the only man about whom no one was ever heard to say an unkind word. Even the women, although he paid them no special attention, were agreed that he was a darling; and although he was plain, almost to ugliness, and old enough almost to be my father, I loved him and determined to marry him long before he had any such thought of me."

Not long ago a Yorkshire lady of wealth and beauty shocked her friends by marrying a poor cripple. It had come to her ears that he had long loved her in silence and had counted each day happy if he only caught a distant glimpse of her. She discovered that he was a devoted son and brother and a man of unusual gifts and culture for his humble position, and, moved by impulses to which some women are liable, she sought an interview with him, told him that she had learned his secret and offered him her hand and fortune. This may appear a strange and improbable thing, but thousands know that it is literally true.

Another lady whose marriage resulted from a similar impulse gives this explanation of it. Among the friends of her family was an old bachelor with a reputation for crustiness who had known her from a child and had often nursed her in early days. To her he had always been gentle and kind, and she had loved him "in a way" as long as she could remember.

One day she said, "Why have you never married, Mr. —?"

"Marry, my dear? Why, no one would ever marry a grumpy old man like me!"

"Of course they would!" she answered indignantly. "Why, I would marry you myself!"

"Thank you, my dear!" came the unexpected answer. "Then we'll consider the matter ended."

In spite of her surprise and misgivings the girl loyally kept her promise, and she has never had reason to regret her "moment's indiscretion."

A lady friend of the writer married her husband for the very illogical reason that he was an avowed woman hater. He made no secret of his aversion to the fair sex and declared it so constantly that, as she says, "I vowed I would convert him and make him change his mind, at least so far as one of my sex was concerned." He was not difficult to convert, for within 12 months he had forsaken his creed so far as to conduct one of the "bated sex" to the altar, and now he declares that he "loves them all."—Tit-Bits.

The Home of Echoes.

Many valleys described in guide-books as "whispering valleys" are favorite resorts for tourists in all parts of the world. Few, however, exceed in wonder a valley at Sandfield in Essex, England. The rest of this parish in giving a careful account of his own experiences states that his house stands on a hill 288 feet above sea level, rising in rear to 300 feet, while in front the ground slopes away to a stream 100 feet below and again rises 180 feet on the opposite side. From the rectory the bells of 14 or 15 villages may be distinguished, while across the valley footsteps and voices in conversational tone may be heard at half a mile.
